To whom it may concern,

International Currency Exchange (ICE) welcomes the opportunity to comment on the Commission for Aviation Regulation's Draft Determination Paper. ICE provides travel money services at Dublin Airport.

Due to our business being retail foreign currency exchange, the level of non-EU destinations served from Dublin Airport is hugely important for the ongoing development of our commercial activities. Undoubtedly, the recent expansion of flights, particularly to the US, Canada and the Middle East, has contributed positively to our financial viability.

Therefore, we would like to see the addition of more new routes at Dublin Airport, especially long-haul destinations. Clearly, the introduction of a new runway, facilitating larger aircraft that are currently unable to use the existing facility, is paramount to achieving these much hoped-for aspirations.

The Commission for Aviation Regulation's decision to increase the runway trigger from 23.5m passengers to 25m passengers and resultant delays in the provision of this much needed piece of infrastructure will have a direct impact on the airport's passenger growth profile and subsequently our medium to long-term profitability.

On this basis, we hope the Final Determination will support rather than prohibit both passenger growth and increased connectivity to/from Dublin Airport.
